Mrs. Blair Johnson, attired in a plain black riding habit, attracted marked attention by her graceful handling of a spirited bay filly. Miss Mary Carter Lindsay was another early bird, riding Premier, a handsome black animal.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Trades Assembly yesterday there was some talk of extending the boycott to the use of gas and electric light, both of which are supplied by the Schenectady Railway Company, and there is a proposal to petition the Common Council to cancel the contract with the company for street lighting.

Many of the 250 motormen and conductors of the Schenectady Railway Company, who receive $2.60 a day, are said to be well satisfied with their positions and their pay and to be opposed to the attempt by the Trades Assembly to unionize them.

Eighth Street Entrance

Open this morning. The large store No. 139 Eighth street, just east of Broadway, is now added to our system of stores. It is directly opposite the temporary terminus of the crosstown street-car line from Christopher Street Ferry. People arriving by the Lackawanna route will find this new entrance to Wanamaker's very handy.

Our stores create a general thoroughfare through the two entire blocks, connected from Broadway to Fourth avenue, and by subway from Eighth to Tenth street. The Public are invited to use this local convenience freely.

The first year of our business in New York made it evident that the Hopes Deferred Old Stewart Block would prove entirely too small for the business that awaited us. Many delays in acquiring the property needed for expansion have occurred, and we are yet distant from our ideal structure. But it will come, although sometimes it has seemed far away as castles in Spain.

Store Birthday Six years ago today we re-opened the "Old Stewart Store." They have been years of uninterrupted growth. Measured by dollars, each month (save one) of the seventy-two has shown by comparison cumulative increase. But growth in bulk has been greater than in dollars. That is a most important fact. The lack of cubic feet would have put a physical barrier to the growth of this business had we not been able to expand by the poor makeshift of our Annex. The rambling old buildings south of Ninth street were put in form for salesrooms, and the connecting subway made them an integral part of our store system.

The Subway Railroad demands a Contraction and substantial slice off the Fourth ave-Expansion nue front of the block between Eighth and Ninth streets. We are thus forced into a manauvre as difficult as in military tactics, a change of front in the face of the enemy. Storage and work-rooms do not concern you. We move salesrooms very rarely, and only under compulsion; but such removals make a deep impression on the public mind. Despite our conservatism the remark "they are always changing the location of their stores" is heard daily. The above-named conditions compel certain changes.

Office Furniture and The business would suffer Commercial Stationery stocks, forced out of Fourth avenue and Ninth street, in No. 766 Broadway, and there in a day or two you will find Office Furniture and Commercial Stationery duly installed while the toys expand into No. 139 Eighth Street.

In the shabby buildings, but ample salesrooms of the Annex will be found the greatest stock of Toys shown in this city. Unequalled in variety, novelty and quantity, it is a veritable Santa Claus Bazar, at once a joy to children and a Christmas dictionary to the providers of holiday happiness for the juvenile population.

Carriages Such of our visitors as come in carriages will find the Tenth Street Carriage Entrance convenient for every part of the two connected blocks. Sundry improvements within and the freedom of the street without make our carriage entrance extremely commodious and accessible.
